DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claims 1 – 4 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

Claims 1 and 2 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being incomplete for omitting essential elements, such omission amounting to a gap between the elements. See MPEP § 2172.01. The omitted elements are: Regarding claim 1, it is unclear as to where the chemical layer is located in the claimed device. Is the chemical layer positioned in a separate tube apart of the test tube for containing the hydrogen fluoride pyrolysis product? How is the recited test tube positioned with respect to the chemical layer? It is unclear as to how the different recited portions are arranged with respect to one another. The structure which goes to make up the device must be clearly and positively specified. The structure must be organized and correlated in such a manner as to present a complete operative device.

Claims 3 and 4 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being incomplete for omitting essential steps, such omission amounting to a gap between the steps. See MPEP § 2172.01. The omitted steps are: Regarding claim 3, the claim preamble recites a method directed to detecting sulfuryl fluoride. It is unclear as to how sulfuryl fluoride is determined for determining the hydrogen fluoride detected. How is the hydrogen fluoride pyrolysis product correlated to the amount of sulfuryl fluoride detected?

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claim 6 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Heckmann et al. (U.S. Pat. No. 5,000,920) (hereinafter “Heckmann”).

Regarding claim 6, Heckmann teaches a heat treatment device for converting gaseous test samples into constituents determinable by a detector. Heckmann teaches an apparatus comprising a tube (1) (see col. 4, lines 50 – 66; figure 1). This claim, as indicated by the preamble, is directed to an intended use of a test tube, not specifically a detection method. A recitation of the intended use of the claimed invention must result in a structural difference between the claimed invention and the prior art in order to patentably distinguish the claimed invention from the prior art. If the prior art structure is capable of performing the intended use, then it meets the claim. See In re Casey, 152 USPQ 235 (CCPA 1967); and In re Otto, 136 USPQ 458, 459 (CCPA 1963). The Courts have held that it is well settled that the recitation of a new intended use, for an old product, does not make a claim to that old product patentable. See In re Schreiber, 128 F.3d 1473, 1477, 44 USPQ2d 1429, 1431 (Fed. Cir. 1997). The Courts have held that apparatus claims must be structurally distinguishable from the prior art in terms of structure, not function. See In re Danley, 120 USPQ 528, 531 (CCPA 1959); and Hewlett-Packard Co. V. Bausch and Lomb, Inc., 15 USPQ2d 1525, 1528 (Fed. Cir. 1990). The Courts have held that the manner of operating an apparatus does not differentiate an apparatus claim from the prior art, if the prior art apparatus teaches all of the structural limitations of the claim.

See Ex Parte Masham, 2 USPQ2d 1647 (BPAI 1987) (see MPEP § 2114).
